- What could be the extent?
- What can we do about it ?

Derek Robertson, Aker Kvaerner Subsea

Developing an Obsolescence Management Plan

This presentation will discuss the building of an obsolescence management plan that describes a proactive collaboration with customers to fulfil their life of field needs. Using the experience of a large installed base the presentation will discuss the assessment of the obsolescence situation through to the selection of the most appropriate option to mitigate the difficulties of ageing equipment.

Zander Bruce, BP

Managing Control System Obsolescence in a Developing Asset

West of Shetland has been under continuous development for the past eight years and will be for the foreseeable future. Maintaining base Production and delivering new wells makes for considerable challenges given the generation of the installed controls equipment. This is further compounded by changes in legislative requirements and the increase in oilfield activities. This presentation will discuss the obsolescence Strategies adopted by BP to ensure continuing and effective support for West of Shetland Subsea Control Systems, within an ever changing environment"
